

To: Amy Jamgochian

Re: Adam Williamson — Microbiology newsletter
at UC Berkeley

By Eddie Herena

February 28, 2017

Being totally separated from the free world produces in the prisoner a natural desire to learn new things. What those new things entail depend on a number of factors.

For me, a person wanting to gain back some of my humanity while incarcerated, and escape the various Mexican-prisoner factions, Christianity is what I learned and began to practice.

When PUP offered Biology w/Lab I took it — literally — as a challenge to ~~what I learned from~~ the Christian text.

Not only did Biology broaden my horizon about life on this planet, but it was fulfilling and fun. Today I aspire to pursue science because it is life changing on so many levels.